URGES WOMEN HERE TO SWIM FOR HEALTH

There is a woman visiting in Honolulu this season who, because she is not a champion swimmer and never expects to compete in any races desires to keep her name from the public but who has consented to tell something of what swimming has done for her. She swims well and if she ever did compete in a race would have a fair chance, but she does not intend to enter any contests.

"You think I am a fairly good swimmer," said she. "Perhaps so, but I did not take up swimming for any reason except that I wished to become healthy. Up to two years ago I was weak and my arms were hardly bigger than a broom handle. I traveled from city to city in search of health, thinking that the climate of other places might help me. When in southern California I went in swimming quite a bit and liked the salt water so much that I secured the services of a swimming teacher. My strength grew rapidly and I decided to stay in southern California and live near the seashore. I like Honolulu so well, however, and the temperature of the water is so much better than that of California I may remain here. Anyway, I can never live in an inland city again."

Anyone who should hear this young woman say that she had ever been anything but strong and healthy might easily doubt her word. She is not very tall but is good and "husky". Her arms show muscle and consequently strength. She is about twenty-four years old and is a splendid picture of health.

"Why do not more of the Honolulu girls swim?" she asked. "That question, of course, must be answered by the girls themselves. You know the beauty of the Honolulu girls is spoken of away from here and tourists expect to see beauty everywhere. While the scenery is all that could be asked for, the girls do not come up to the expectation of travelers. Many of them are shallow, and as for thin girls, well I never saw so many in my life." If some of these with washed-out complexions would spend an hour each day at Waikiki, they would soon improve in their looks. She continued, saying that people who live in tropical climates cannot expect to have roses in their cheeks unless the roses come from strenuous exercise. She was very much surprised to find that so few women here go in for swimming. She is not the only tourist who has expressed this same surprise. People from other parts of the world say that the waters at Waikiki are better than anywhere else, and wonder that more of the local people do not take advantage of them.

"Unless one has found from experience the wonderful physical development gained from swimming," she says, "the stories told are almost incredible. I have seen so many girls in Honolulu who are no bigger than I was when I first took up swimming and I am sure that if they knew what that form of exercise would do for them they would spend their leisure hours at Waikiki. Two years ago I weighed 112 pounds, now my average weight is anywhere from 125 to 130. I never allow myself to gain more weight than that."

EASTERN STAR VISITORS BID HAWAII ALOHA

A large number of members of the Order of the Eastern Star congregated at the Alakea wharf this forenoon to say goodbye to Mrs. M. Alice Miller, the worthy grand matron of the general grand chapter of that order, who has been visiting in the islands since the second of last month.

Mrs. Miller's party consisted of five, all members and officers of the order, the others being Mrs. Mary Stuart Smith, Mrs. Anna D. Perry and Mr. and Mrs. Merritt, and they shared tully in the goodbyes and all were covered with leis from head to foot.

They all expressed the pleasure the visit had been to them and say that it is not the last that Honolulu will see of them.

During their stay in the islands the party has visited all the sights on the group and have paid a visit to the volcano.

The combined area of the cornfields of the United States is nearly equal to the area of France or Germany.

A Sign of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

Dr. T. Felix Goursaud's Oriental Cream or Magical Beautifier.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth Patches, Rash, and all skin blemishes, and every blemish on beauty, and restores the complexion to its natural beauty. It has stood the test of 65 years, and is so famous we have had it in the hands of the most famous of the world. Dr. T. Felix Goursaud is a lady of the highest reputation. As you believe will use them, I recommend 'Goursaud's Cream' as the best of all the skin preparations. For sale by all druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers in the United States, Canada and Europe. FENDT. HOPKINS & SON, Props. 37 Cort. Jones St., N.Y.C.

POISONOUS TABLETS ARE DANGEROUS

In every household you will find among the toilet necessities some sort of a germicide, in the form of either a tablet, solution or powder. Many of these antiseptic preparations contain poisons.

The value of an absolutely harmless antiseptic powder, as compared with a poisonous tablet or solution, is apparent to every one, and that is one reason why physicians everywhere have strongly recommended Tyree's Antiseptic Powder. Dissolves instantly in water, and when used as a douche is unexcelled. A 25-cent package makes two gallons of standard solution. Sold by druggists everywhere. Send for booklet and free sample.

'THE THIEF' A REAL TRIUMPH OF ARTISTRY

World's Fair Stock Company
Gives Remarkable Interpretation of Bernstein Drama

Cast of The Thief
Marie Louise Voyson ..... Virginia Brissac
Richard Voyson ..... James Dillon
Raymond Legardes ..... Howard Nugent
Isabel Legardes ..... Violet Nugent
Fernand Legardes ..... John Wray
Monsieur Zambecault ..... Ray Hanford

On the principle of keeping the best for the last, Virginia Brissac has shown herself to Honolulu playgoers in the title role of "The Thief," just before saying goodbye to the many friends that she has made here on and off the stage. True, "The Third Degree" is to be repeated Thursday night as a farewell offering; but it is in the character of Marie Louise Voyson that Miss Brissac will be remembered by those who have followed her through the stage stories of the long engagement.

To say that a play "grips," is to use a phrase that has been worn threadbare in the service of theatrical reporting, but no other combination of words so exactly expresses the effect of Bernstein's great drama of reality on the audience. From curtain to curtain as the story of a woman's crime for a man's love develops and reaches a climax that is both artistic and true to the ways of the world, the play holds those who witness it in the tense grip of appreciation.

"The Thief" tells the story of a woman who loves her husband to the point where she neither knows nor cares for the difference between right and wrong. She knows that he is proud of her looks and likes to see her smartly gowned, and therefore argues that she must have expensive gowns to hold his love. The fact that their income doesn't permit of these expenditures, cuts no figure whatever. M. and Mme. Voyson pay an extended visit at the home of their rich friends the Legardes. The chance comes for Marie Louise to help herself to large sums of money which her friend is in the habit of carelessly leaving in the drawer of a secretary. The disappearance of the currency is finally noticed, and a detective employed by the Legardes fixes the blame on young Fernand Legardes, the 19-year-old son of the house. But for months the lad has been in love with Mme. Voyson, who, regardless of the harm she may be doing, has accepted his adoration in a half-amused, half-contemptuous way.

When Mme. Voyson finds that the thefts have been discovered, and that she is on the edge of the precipice of discovery, she does not hesitate to ask young Legardes to make a false confession, which he does, nearly breaking his father's heart.

That night Richard Voyson discovers that his wife has six thousand francs in her possession, which she can not account for. She breaks down and finally confesses the theft, and almost wins the husband's promise to let matters take their course, and surreptitiously recompense the Legardes. But suddenly the flame of jealousy is lighted in Voyson. Why, he asks himself, has this boy been willing to confess to a crime that he

GRAND OPERA STARS NOW ON THEIR WAY HERE

The Lombardi Grand Opera Company, that superb organization of Italian songbirds, some seventy in number, embarked at San Francisco for Honolulu on the steamship Sierra today. Full details have been completed for the fare of the members upon their arrival Monday morning next. The roster of leading singers embrace some of the most distinguished artists in the operatic world. Among them is Ester Adaberto, dramatic soprano, late of the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York. Mme. Adaberto achieved her greatest success as Leonora, in "Il Trovatore," as Tosca, in the famous Puccini opera of that name, and as the leading feminine character in Verdi's massive work, Aida. While in Honolulu, Mme. Adaberto will be heard in all these roles, as well as that of Nedda, in the opera, "Pagliacci."

The first day of the subscription seat sale brought hundreds of opera enthusiasts to the promotion committee rooms, and indications are that the theater will be entirely sold out the first week.

The second week's engagement, according to Advance Manager Baker, who is in the city, will be replete with operatic novelties of the first magnitude and importance.

The general public seat sale will open tomorrow morning, at 9 o'clock, at the promotion committee rooms, Young building.

NOTED METHODIST WILL LECTURE TONIGHT

A popular lecture will be given this evening at the Methodist Episcopal church by Bishop Naphtali Luccock, D. D., L. L. D. The subject will be "Twentieth Century Ideals." Bishop Luccock is here to hold the annual mission conference of the Methodist church which opens Thursday at 9 a. m. He has been pastor of some of the largest churches on the continent and was elected bishop last May. He is an eloquent speaker and his popular lectures have been delivered in all parts of the United States. The lecture this evening will be a rare treat. The admission is free and the public is cordially invited. Lecture begins at eight o'clock.

SMYTH-YOUNG NUPTIALS

Announcement was made today of the marriage on Sunday of Mrs. Augusta Young and Mr. Gavin M. Smyth of this city. The marriage was performed at the Methodist parsonage with the Rev. Robert Elmer Smith officiating.

is in no way connected with? Because, he answers himself, my wife is more to him than she should be.

The last act sees the play brought to an artistic climax of forgiveness. Voyson sees that whatever his wife has done has been for love of him, and finds he can pardon anything but infidelity. He tells his friend Legardes the truth, and insists on leaving the country instead of Fernand, who was to have been sent to Brazil to meditate on his misdeeds.

The action of the play is built around the title role, Marie Louise being on the stage practically throughout the entire action. This gives an opportunity to focus the attention on Miss Brissac's talented acting, and her handling of the part surpasses anything she has previously done here.

Both in appearance and in his interpretation of the part of James Dillon portrays Richard Voyson excellently. He is perhaps better in the last act than in the boudoir scene where the wife confesses, appearing just a trifle more dramatic and heroic than a real man in real life would be under similar circumstances. "Stagey" is the word that expresses his acting in one or two of the big scenes.

The part of the shy boy, in the grip of his first big love affair, suits John Wray, and he sustains the character throughout. Howard Nugent, as Raymond Legardes, is, next to Miss Brissac, the most happily cast member of the company. He just fits the part, or else has made the part fit him. The parts of Isabel Legardes and Monsieur Zambecault are not heavy, but both are played in a thoroughly pleasing manner.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, lycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

troubles but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once. We just want you to give D.D.D. a trial. That will be enough to prove it.

Of course all other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee:—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.
